ATTORNEY GENERAL TAKES ACTION AGAINST USED DEALER

Arkansas Attorney General Leslie Rutledge announced this week that a lawsuit has been filed against Best Ride Auto Sales in Sherwood.

The complaint alleges the used car dealership sold over 1000 used cars and failed to deliver title at the time of sale at least 100 times in the last three years, and also failed to display in the window of the vehicles for sale the Used Motor Vehicle Buyer's Guide that tells consumers whether the car is sold "as is" or with a warranty.

As a result of these allegations, the complaint states the company violated the Arkansas Deceptive Trade Practices Act (ADTPA), the Used Motor Vehicle Protection Act (UMVPA), and the Motor Vehicle Administration, Certificate of Title, and Antitheft Act.

AADA is working closely with the Attorney General's office to clarify that while the allegations against Best Ride Auto Sales are serious, there are at times unavoidable delays in providing paperwork to buyers due to lienholders not releasing liens or providing titles in a timely manner.

We will keep you updated.
